She is a struggling software developer working from home. She has to code in java as well as she has got a task to learn python from her company. But she barely has time to download multiple IDEs to learn, test and save her code simultaneously by keeping in mind the storage space of her computer.	She needs a single platform where she can write, test and save her code without wasting the memory of her PC. So that, she can save the time and access her code for long term by saving the code.
